Annex I: Laos Hierarchy of Laws and enforcement²

The issuing of PMO 15 (2016) and the funding and redirection of resource to its implementation was a clear demonstration of commitment to address existing shortfalls and provide time to establish more robust regulatory instruments as well as more effective enforcement and compliance responses.

The GoL has developed legislation and policies that assign specific roles and responsibilities related to combatting forest-based crime, including distinct authority to manage, monitor, investigate and enforce laws and regulations, to various ministries and departments, including Agriculture and Forestry (MAF), Natural Resources and Environment (MoNRE), Industry and Commerce (MOIC), Finance (MOF), Public Security (MOPS), Health (MOH), and the Ministry of Transport (MOT). Within these Ministries, individual departments, both at the national, provincial and district levels, have specific functions as defined in terms of reference. The roles of these departments are devolved to the provincial, district and village levels through the local administration.

Agencies with a role in the enforcement of forest and wildlife crime include the Department of Forest Inspection (DoFI), the Environmental and Economic Police, the Anti-Corruption Agency, Customs, and the Armed Forces. The DoFI, established in 2008, falls under the MAF. It is the GoL's lead agency for enforcement activities under the Forestry Law 2019, and the Wildlife and Aquatic Law 2007 No07/NA.

Further to PMO15, the GoL has enacted important legal changes under the Criminal Procure Law in October 2018 (broadened and clarified authority to act for law enforcement agencies), instituted Prime Minister Order #5 and adopted a new Penal Code which enhanced penalties that includes provisions targeting transnational and organized criminal networks and the individuals who support them. The new Penal Code also address many previous inconsistencies and gaps under laws, including international agreements such as CITES and the objectives of the Asia/Pacific Group on Money Laundering (APG).

This improved regulatory framework demonstrates the GoL's commitment to protect its forests and wildlife resources and to meet its international obligations under CITES, the UN Convention Against Organized Crime, and the UN Convention Against Corruption. Donor organizations have also started to provide support to the Department of Forest Inspection (DoFI), Lao Wildlife Enforcement Network (Lao-WEN) and its partners. This support has resulted in the establishment of centralized investigation and enforcement systems to combat illegal forest-based trade.

² Copied from Annex III in the Laos Timber Legality Risk Assessment, V2.0, 2020.

The GoL has operationalized a risk-based approach to law enforcement activities, referred to as the Strategic and Tactical Enforcement Patrol Program (STEPP), and is improving coordinated, multi-agency operational responses at a provincial, national or international level. However, these systems and processes are not, and practical experience is limited and disjointed.

Despite these advances, forest management and law enforcement agencies, for the most part, still lack the expertise to fully implemented sustainable approaches, effectively monitor and investigate criminal networks and locate illegal forest products. They are also deficient in capacity to identify and properly distinguish certain products, especially at border crossings, and don't have sufficient resources to undertake sustained enforcement actions.

The following section provides further information on the hierarchy of laws and the interactions of various regulatory instruments and related authorities in Lao PDR and is designed to assist a reader in interpreting a particular instruments relationship in regard to other such instruments, whether higher, lower or similar.

Hierarchy of Law

The Lao PDR the hierarchy of Laws is implied in the Law on Making Legislation No 19/NA 2012 and consists includes the issuing of specific administrative instruments relevant to specific laws and responsible ministries, departments, organisations or individuals. The general level of hierarchy is:

- The Constitution
- Laws
- Resolutions of the National Assembly
- Resolutions of the Standing Committee of the National Assembly
- Ordinances of the President of the Republic
- Decrees of the Government
- Resolutions of the Government
- Orders and Decisions of the Prime Minister
- Orders, Decisions and Instructions of the Minister and Head of a Government Authority
- Orders, Decisions and Instructions of the Provincial Governors and City Governors
- Orders, Decisions and Instructions of the District and Municipality Chiefs

- Village Regulations

The Law on Making Legislation requires legislation be published in the Official Lao Gazette (<https://laoofficialgazette.gov.la/>) in order to be Effective (Article 80). This is the official source for all legally enforceable primary and subsidiary legislation of general application for Lao PDR at the national, provincial and capital levels. Districts / Municipalities and villages have the option to publish legislation on the Official Gazette and/or in other local media or post it in a way that people can access it easily.

Note: The Lao PDR Trade Portal (<https://www.laotradeportal.gov.la/>) website provides information regarding importing/exporting goods into/from Lao, including information related to import/export process, regulations for specific products, and relevant laws. The Guide for Import-Export, on the right of this page provides a comprehensive set of information and guidelines in plain language, and the database is also designed for convenient search by topic.

Importantly, Article 9. Contradiction of Legislation of the Law on Making Legislation states: “Legislation being developed shall be consistent with higher legislation.”

Where a contradiction exists, legislation of the higher level shall be applied. If a contradiction of legislation at the same level exists, the later legislation shall be applied. If legislations at the same level contradict each other, the provisions of specific legislation shall prevail.

However, contradictions may continue to exist after legislative changes and undermine the effectiveness of enforcement.

The new 2017 Penal Code (Article 333) makes reference to CITES (“Any person importing, exporting, re-exporting, transshipping or transiting aquatic and wildlife including parts, organs and products of such aquatic and wildlife unlawfully with regulations relating to CITES, shall be punished by three months to five years of imprisonment and shall be fined not exceeding 10,000,000 Kip” as well as making it illegal to import, export, transport such items (Article 274, 282, 284 and 335).

Authority

Authority is defined under the Constitution, vested under laws, and codified under regulatory instruments issued via different administrative authorities. Administrative authority applies to those officials under direct responsibility chains.

Under Article 5 of the Constitution, The National Assembly and other state organisations are established and function in accordance with the principle of democratic centralism: a term applied to policy defined by a ruling party.

Importantly, Under the Constitution, Article 69, The government is the executive branch of the State. Under Article 73, the Prime Minister appoints senior government officials, including provincial Governors.
